High School English Summer Reading 2018 - 2019

What do I need to do?

You need to read the summer reading text(s) assigned for your 2018 - 2019 English class prior to the start of school in August. As you will likely have many activities and responsibilities this summer, please plan accordingly to make sure you budget time to complete your summer reading. Note: If you are enrolled in an AP English course, you will have additional summer assignments -- please be mindful of all of the reading and writing you must complete during the summer months as it is integral to the content of each course.

Why does this matter?

Reading is important. Period. Furthermore, we learn about ourselves and the world around us when we engage in meaningful, thoughtful conversations about the literature we've read. Many colleges require first-year students to start the year by reading a common text. The assigned text serves as a catalyst to foster discussion and a sense of community among the diverse members of the incoming class. By incorporating required summer reading into the English curriculum, your English teachers are challenging you to extend your learning experiences beyond the boundaries of the classroom as you explore the assigned text(s) independently during the summer months and return to school prepared to engage in conversations about what you read. Also, READING IS FUN!

What else do I need to know?

Within the first two weeks of your return to school in August, your English teacher will assign at least one of these four options to engage you and your classmates in a conversation about your assigned summer reading texts:

1. An oral presentation demonstrating your thoughts, opinions, and questions in response to the assigned text(s)
2. A group discussion in which you'll converse with your peers about the assigned text(s)
3. A technology-based conversation using technological tools to convey your thoughts, opinions, or questions in response to the assigned text(s)
4. A written conversation (essay) in response to an essential question you'll encounter in your coursework as it pertains to the assigned summer reading text(s)

Your knowledge of the assigned summer reading text(s) will be assessed using the following criteria:

1. Information about the assigned text(s) is accurate and specific
2. Multiple relevant references and examples from the assigned text(s) are used to support one's ideas, opinions, or arguments
3. The "conversation" enhances others' understanding or appreciation of the assigned text(s)

English 9 and English 10 assignment(s) will be worth a total of 50 points and included in your first semester grade.

English 11 and English 12 assignment(s) will be worth a total of 100 points and included in your first semester grade.

AP Language and AP Literature assignments will vary in points based on requirements set forth by the instructor.

Where can I find the books on the lists?
